SeaWorld Parks & Entertainment inspired more than 23 million guests in 2013 to celebrate, connect with and care for the natural world. Through up-close animal encounters and educational exhibits, guests leave with a heightened sensitivity to the world around them and an awareness of the plight of animals in the wild. Their commitment to animals reaches around the world. SeaWorld Parks & Entertainment supports conservation programs and also operates one of the world's most respected wildlife rescue programs. In cooperation with the government and other members of accredited stranding networks, SeaWorld has helped animals in need—ill, injured, orphaned, and abandoned—for more than four decades. More than 24,000 animals have been rescued by the parks' animal experts. The goal of the program is to rehabilitate and then return these animals to the wild.

SeaWorld Rescue Facts

SeaWorld has rescued more than 24,000 animals since our first rescue program started in 1964.

Since 1980, SeaWorld has rescued over 1710 endangered sea turtles. That's an average of 51.8 per year.

In 2000, SeaWorld helped rescue more than 20,000 penguins and 700 orphaned penguin chicks after an oil spill in South Africa.

The SeaWorld & Busch Gardens Conservation Fund has granted more than $11 million to protect wildlife and wild places.

SeaWorld Animal Rescue is on call 24 hours a day, 365 days a year and has aided in saving more than 24,000 orphaned, abandoned, ill or injured animals, including dolphins and whales. Knowledge gained from caring for the parks' animal inhabitants also has contributed to saving their wild brethren. Last summer, SeaWorld experts shared information gained from the parks' killer whale breeding program to help marine biologists across the world save the life of an orphaned killer whale calf rescued in Dutch waters.

A Legacy of Animal Rescue

1963 Hubbs–SeaWorld Research Institute opens with a commitment “to return to the sea some measure of the benefits derived from it.”

1964 SeaWorld opens in San Diego, Calif., where the first animal rescue team is formed.

1976 SeaWorld Orlando rescues its first manatee.

1980 First bottle-raised orphaned manatee, Marina is rescued, successfully rehabilitated, and released.

1989 5,000-pound Bryde’s whale is rehabilitated after around-the-clock care and returned to the wild.

Inside Track at SeaWorld	Here are some Top Tips from SeaWorld Insiders: If you love animals... Make time for feeding times: Meal time is the best time to meet some playful Atlantic Bottlenose dolphins, sea lions, and sting rays, who you can even feed by hand—but only at designated times throughout the day. Stop by in the morning to check the day's schedule, then give yourself some extra time to get a great spot right at the water's edge. See what goes on behind the scenes: SeaWorld Orlando's Behind-the-Scenes tour times aren't listed on the park map, so they're easy to miss out on once you're here. An insider's tip? Book online ahead of time, or stop by the tour desk just inside the front gate. If you're bringing young kids...

Chris Robinson Associates Inc does not warrant the quality, accuracy or completeness of any claims, statements or information contained within this document. This document was created at the time of broadcast and may not be current.

Bring a disposable waterproof camera: There's wet, and there's Shamu wet. If you're in the Soak Zone at Shamu stadium, you'll have a lot more fun watching kids' reactions if you don't have to watch out for an expensive camera. A little tip for parents? Pack a poncho—or pick one up at the gift shop. It's a great way to keep yourself and a towel or two dry, and still get in on the fun.

Feed their imagination: Look for interactive work stations and computers located throughout the park that give kids a fun way to learn about the animals they meet. Kids can test their lung power against a walrus in Wild Arctic or see how a manatee grinds its food at Manatee Rescue.

Head to Shamu's Happy Harbor: A great place for kids to burn off a little energy, plus plenty of shady spots for parents. Ride the family-friendly Shamu Express—a great first coaster—and imaginative rides like Jazzie Jellies and Swishy Fishies that bring out the kid in everyone.

Make an autograph book: put together an autograph book with kids ahead of time, then catch the Shamu & Crew characters from 9 a.m. to noon near the front gate.

Once you've worked up an appetite...

Beat the crowd: Plan to have lunch during show performances and you'll get ahead of the crowd.

Plan to already have a reservation at Shark's Underwater Grill: This popular restaurant only takes priority seating requests in person—starting at 10:00 a.m. Stop by early to guarantee your seat.

A few last tips from those in the know...

Choose your seats wisely: You will get drenched if you sit in the front seat of Journey to Atlantis—and I mean drenched! Been there, done that!

Beat the heat: Temperatures can get quite high—especially in the middle of the day. Plan to take in these "cool places" when the thermometer rises: Wild Arctic, Penguin Encounter and Nautilus Theater.

Remember the kid in you: Don't be surprised if you find yourself choked up in the presence of Shamu. Or your arms covered with goose bumps

SeaWorld Rides	“Manta” is a seamless blend of up-close animal encounters with a head-first, face-down thrill ride. The only flying roller coaster of its kind in the world, Manta already is topping the list of don’t-miss 2010 theme park attractions. “Kraken” – Orlando’s only floorless roller coaster – is themed after a massive, mythological underwater beast unleashed from the depths of the sea. Riders’ feet dangle as they travel in open-sided seats, riding on a pedestal above the track at speeds of 65 mph to heights of more than 140 feet. “Journey to Atlantis” is an edge-of-your-seat water-coaster -- part water ride, part roller coaster -- thrill ride that plunges guests into the middle of a clash for the lost city of Atlantis. Riders encounter spine-tingling thrills, including two of the steepest, wettest and fastest drops to be found at any theme park in the world. “Wild Arctic” takes guests on a thrilling, motion-based flight over the frozen North where they are enveloped in the beauty, exhilaration and danger of Arctic exploration. Stepping from the simulated jetcopter experience they enter a frozen wonderland with live beluga whales, walruses, harbor seals and polar bears.
Busch Gardens Rides	Falcon’s Fury is the tallest freestanding drop tower in North America, standing at 335 feet. At the ride’s highest point, like its bird of prey namesake, riders pivot 90 degrees in midair to a face-down dive position. An instant later they’ll plunge 60 mph straight down. There is a variable hold time at the top of the ride before drop (so you never know how long you’ll hang there). There’s also a five to six second freefall time. Cheetah Hunt: a one-of-a-kind launch coaster that climbs high above

the African landscape, races down along the ground and through a rocky gorge. On Cheetah Run enter an ancient realm that puts you just inches away from the world's fastest land animals.

SheiKra: North America's first dive coaster sends riders through a breathtaking three-minute journey 200 feet up, then 90 degrees straight down — and that's just the beginning. "Floorless" cars give riders an unobstructed view of the 70 mph rush, and SheiKra was the first dive coaster to incorporate an Immelmann loop (a simultaneous loop and roll), a second, 138-foot vertical drop into an underground tunnel and a water feature finale, all packed into a half-mile of steel track.

Kumba: After the blood-curdling thrill of an initial 135 foot drop, you will plunge from 110 feet into a diving loop, feel a full 3 seconds of absolute weightlessness while spiraling 360 degrees, and tear through one of the world's largest vertical loops.

Montu: Feel the ultimate rush on one of the tallest and longest inverted roller coasters in the world! Experience the thrill of an inverse diving loop and a 60-foot vertical loop while you endure speeds of more than 60 miles per hour and a G-force of 3.85.

Gwazi: Challenge the dueling forces of Gwazi: two wooden tracks intertwined into the Southeast's largest and fastest double wooden roller coaster. Boasting more than 1.25 million board feet of lumber, Gwazi's Lion and Tiger tracks offer two distinct ride experiences.

Cheetah Chase: Families will love the curves, drops and corkscrews of Cheetah Chase, a five-story "wild mouse" style coaster in Timbuktu. With its top speed of 22 mph and 46" height requirement, Cheetah Chase is the perfect ride for a child's first coaster experience.

Scorpion: Feel the "sting" of Scorpion's terrifying 60-foot drop and 360-degree loop at incredible speeds.

The Wild Surge: Launch out of a 35-foot mountain crater up above a towering waterfall for a thrilling view of Jungala's village below.

Jungle Flyers: Young adventurers choose from three different flight patterns to soar 50 feet above Jungala's village.

Rhino Rally: This wild jeep tour transports guests aboard an off-road adventure through the wilds of Africa, blending up-close animal encounters with an unpredictable safari competition.
