|                    | White Mountains         Many vistas around the White Mountains are virtually unchanged since the arrival of early settlers, thanks in part to the 800,000-acre White Mountain National Forest. The history of Manchester is the history of its mills. Brick buildings today line both shores of the Merrimack River, reflecting a time when New England was one of the centers of manufacturing for a growing nation. French-Canadian workers flocked to the city from Quebec, and many of their descendants still live and work in the city, giving Manchester a multicultural flavor. The industrial era has passed, but visitors can still be impressed by the old mills, some now converted to restaurants and offices, others serving as university classrooms, and one that has leapt eras by housing a technology center. With 100,000 residents, Manchester is northern New England's largest city, and it has a grittier, more urban feel than anywhere else you can visit in the three states. It's a place for gathering supplies, visiting the fine art museum, and - most of all - getting a glimpse of the region's proud industrial heritage. |

| Genealogy | There are many historical connections with Quebec families in this state, so you may be able to find your missing ancestors in the historical rolls of the state. At one time, a third of New Hampshire families were from Quebec.   |
| Seniors   | The 55 to 64 age group represented the largest source of visitors from Canada with 37%. Hanover: If your idea of New England involves a sweeping green edged with stately brick buildings, be sure to visit Hanover, a thriving university town in the Connecticut River Valley. First settled in 1765, the town was home to early colonists who were granted a charter by King George III to establish a college. The school was named after the second Earl of Dartmouth, its first trustee. Since its founding, Dartmouth College has had a large hand in shaping the community. This Ivy League school has produced more than its share of celebrated alumni, including Robert Frost, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, former surgeon general C. Everett Koop, and Dr. Seuss. Another noted son of Dartmouth was the 19th-century politician and orator Daniel Webster. Today, a handsome, oversize village green marks the permeable border between college and town. In summer, the green is an ideal destination for strolling and lounging. The best way to explore Hanover is on foot, so your first endeavor is to park your car, which can be trying during peak seasons (fall foliage and whenever school is in session). Try the municipal lots west of Main Street. |

It is the oldest U.S. state capitol where legislators still meet in their original chambers. It was one of the thirteen colonies that revolted against British rule in the American Revolution. It was the first state to declare its independence, but the only battle fought there was the raid on Fort William and Mary, December 14, 1774 in Portsmouth Harbor, which netted the rebellion sizable quantities of gunpowder, small arms, and cannon over the course of two nights. This raid was preceded by a warning to local patriots the previous day, by Paul Revere on December 13, 1774 that the fort was to be reinforced by troops sailing from Boston. According to unverified accounts, the gunpowder was later used at the Battle of Bunker Hill, transported there by Major Demerit, who was one of several New Hampshire patriots who stored the powder in their homes until it was transported elsewhere for use in revolutionary activities. New Hampshire was a Jacksonian stronghold; the state sent Franklin Pierce to the White House in the election of 1852. Industrialization took the form of numerous textile mills, which in turn attracted large flows of immigrants from Quebec and Ireland. The northern parts of the state produced lumber and the mountains provided tourist attractions. Since 1952, New Hampshire gained national and international attention for its presidential primary held early in every presidential election year. |

the state, the lush mountain ranges put on one of the longest-running colour displays on the continent in September, while the lower valleys provide colour late into October. Since the date for peak colour changes, depending on where you are in the state, what elevation you are at and varying weather patterns, New Hampshire Division of Travel and Tourism Development has launched its foliage forecast website, <http://foliage.visitnh.gov> along with some travel tips for an autumn visit. There are numerous fall packages available offering by resorts and country inns – check out www.visitnh.gov. The most intense fall colours occur in areas in the state where there are vast stands of similar trees that turn colour at the same time. New Hampshire's scenic roads are a perfect way to see the joyous explosion of reds and yellows that bursts over the landscape. Visitors should also consider leaving your car in the parking lot and taking in views by hiking, boating, kayaking or even a steam train ride. Try to observe scenery at different times during the day to experience the varying, but equally stunning, light effects produced in morning, afternoon and twilight. There's more to fall than an eye-popping palette of colour.

Fall is harvest season and the perfect time to enjoy the taste of New Hampshire own fresh fruits and vegetables at a mountainside or seaside picnic.

Using a colour coded map of the state and data from previous falls, the foliage forecast shows people what they can expect on any day of the autumn in any part of the Granite State. Through the website, www.visitnh.gov in September, it goes live with daily updates so that visitors can get up-to-the-minute reports on New Hampshire's online foliage report with text alerts to their mobile phone. People can also call toll-free, 800-258-3608 to check on where peak foliage is in full "bloom."

For instance, here is the current (October 7th 2011) report for the White Mountains region of the state:

“The foliage is at different levels all over the White Mountains region. On the western side, the color is well-established; scenic drives along Routes 3 and Interstate 93 through Franconia Notch, and Route 302 through Crawford Notch will not disappoint leaf peepers. Route 112 along the Kancamagus Highway is looking very colorful, with lots of reds and oranges along the Swift River. Route 49 through Waterville Valley is showing lots of yellows, reds and oranges along the banks of the Mad River. On the eastern side of the region, the color is becoming well-established, with plenty of green yet to change. Expect peak fall color to hit this area very soon.”

The Wine and Cheese Trails brochure is also available as a downloadable brochure, on-line or in print. Using maps, directories and breathtakingly beautiful pictures, this brochure spotlights wineries, creameries and farms in the Seacoast Region, the Merrimack Valley and the “Apple Way” (western area of the New Hampshire). http://www.visitnh.gov/uploads/itineraries/wine-cheese-brochure-8-10.pdf Meant as a guide for motorists who want to explore the state while enjoying the fruit of the vine, The Wine and Cheese Trails brochure, like New Hampshire wine, is meant to be sampled over time. These are trips to be savoured, not rushed. Three of New Hampshire’s most distinguished vineyards and creameries along the Seacoast Trail take advantage of the coastal climate to create fruity award winning wines famed for their delicate bouquets. The Flag Hill Winery stretches over 20 acres of land on a family farm in Lee. In the tasting room, guests sample fruit, red, white, dessert and port wines. In nearby South Hampton, Jewell Towne Vineyards has won more than 100 medals in international competitions for its Seyval; Maréchal Foch. The winery is open year-round and offers free tours. Zorvino Vineyards in Sandown, produces wines from grapes grown on the 80-acre property. The vineyard offers tours, tastings and a retail store selling wine-related items. Those in the know bring along a selection of goat cheeses from the nearby Full Moon Farm in Rochester, NH to accompany the wines produced by these three Seacoast wineries. Driving the Merrimack Wine and Cheese Trail will take two or three days. It is an approximately 336 kilometer voyage with stops at 3 vineyards and 4 dairies. The Apple Way Trail covers 160 kilometers, 3 vineyards and 2 dairies. |
| Beer | There’s a great beer trail linking many of New Hampshire’s breweries. Brewery Map and Wine &amp; Cheese – taste a local wine and brew but not just taste...see, sample, and meet the brewers and makers. Though there are breweries and wineries throughout the world, each is nothing alike and this is one of the most popular ways to experience local life and culture. Candia Vineyards is NH’s most awarded but new ones are opening such as LaBelle’s and unique flavors such as those designed  |

| Restaurants | There are many excellent restaurants all over the state- here are a few recommended places: Wine Thyme, North Conway         This is a Wine Bar, restaurant and Wine Shop all under one roof. Wine Thyme has one of the largest outdoor dining patios in the valley with full service lunch and dinner. On Saturday and Sunday they serve a full breakfast starting at 7:00am They have a large appetizer and tapa menu in addition to full entrees. The wine menu offers over 50 bottles by the glass and their wine cellar has fine offerings from Cakebread, Paul Hobbs, Don Melchor and Sassicaia. Their retail wine shop is stocked with local and imported cheese as well as a wide selection of limited production wines, domestic and foreign offerings, sparkling wines, champagne and ports.         2697 White Mtn. Hwy. North Conway, NH 03860 Tel: 603.356.8463 http://www.winethymeonline.com The Daniel Webster Room of the Hanover Inn in Hanover appeals to those looking for fine dining in a formal New England atmosphere. The inn's Colonial Revival dining room is reminiscent of a 19th-century resort hotel, with fluted columns, floral carpeting, and regal upholstered chairs. The dinner menu isn't extensive, but that doesn't make it any less appealing. Produce from the college's organic farm is used seasonally. The changing entrees are eclectic and creative and may include braised rabbit leg with truffled pappardelle. Off the lobby is Zins, |

A sleek and spare spot dotted with splashes of color, it also features an open kitchen and a polished steel bar. Jay's attracts a younger, culinary-attuned clientele. The day's fresh catch is posted on blackboards; you pick the fish, and pair it up with sauces, such as salsa verde, ginger-orange, or roasted red pepper. Pasta dishes are also an option - add scallops, mussels, or chicken as you like. The food's great, and the attention to detail by the kitchen and waitstaff is admirable. For the kids: Jukebox Junction, Madison: Opening this month (October 2011), this is a new 1950's themed Ice Cream Shoppe and Diner offering 1950's specialty fountain drinks along with over 20 different flavors of ice cream including 6 no sugar added flavors. Stop off for ice cream if you are heading between North Conway and the Lakes Region. www.jukebox-junction.com |
